The arts connect communities in ways imperceptible and innumerable. Participation in the arts is essential for the development of young minds, and utterly inseparable from our adult experience. However, as we age, we sometimes forget the impact that the arts have on our human experience. Sometimes, we must be reminded of the importance the arts have in our lives, and the ways in which art, in all of its forms, feeds our souls. Join me and the wonderful students in the College of the Arts for an experience that will remind you of the artistry that is essential to your life.

“When all I wanted was to sing, I was granted the honor of living.”

- Ranier Maria Rilke
