The Conflict Face-Negotiation Theory, developed by Stella Ting-Toomey, emphasizes how culture-level, individual-level, and situational-level factors influence cross-cultural conflict styles. Face is about identity respect and other-identity consideration issues. In the speech, Dr. Ting-Toomey will address the developmental stages of the theory and the associated research findings. She will offer an account of the journey behind the development of the intercultural face-negotiation lens.

Intercultural Conflict Face-Negotiation Theory: A Researcher’s Journey

Stella Ting-Toomey

Monday, April 13, 2009 • 11:00 a.m.  TSU Pavilion • Reception follows lecture